THE UNIVERSITY OF ILLINOIS

... in brief
Chartered in 1867 in response to the Federal Land Grant Act, the University of Illinois is one of the largest and best comprehensive research universities in the nation. Its mission is to advance human knowledge through teaching, research, and public service. Its motto is “Learning & Labor.”

The University is at or near the top of all American universities in the number of engineering doctorates awarded each year, and total chemistry and chemical engineering degrees. The U. of I. offers more graduate study in dentistry, medicine, nursing, pharmacy and public health than any other health education institution in the nation.

Eight alumni and five faculty members have won Nobel Prizes.

Nine Urbana faculty have been awarded the National Medal of Science; more than 100 from both campuses are current members of the National Academy of Science, the American Academy of Arts and Sciences, and the National Academy of Engineering.

Since the mid-80s, the Chicago campus has received more fellowships from the National Endowment for the Humanities than any other university.

In direct service to the people of Illinois, the University's continued education and public service programs annually bring credit and non-credit education to thousands of Illinoisans.

ENTERING THE UNIVERSITY

Admissions Information
... for the Chicago campus is available from the Undergraduate Admissions Office, 100 Administration Building, 505 S. Wright St., Urbana 61801. Telephone 217-333-0352.
... for the Urbana-Champaign campus is available from the Office of Admissions and Records, 100 Administration Building, 505 S. Wright St., Urbana 61801. Telephone 217-333-0352.
Undergraduate admission requirements, including rank in high school class and national test scores, vary from college to college and sometimes by curriculum within a college. Both campuses urge prospective freshmen to apply early in the fall of their final year in high school.
Graduate and professional school entrance requirements vary.

Academic-Year Costs
Tuition for the 1990-91 school year (three quarters at Chicago or two semesters at Urbana-Champaign) is $1,900 at UIC and $2,130 at UIUC for freshmen and sophomores and $2,161 at UIC and $2,576 at UIUC for juniors and seniors, if they are Illinois residents. Annual tuition for in-state graduate students is $2,627 at UIUC and $2,700 at UIC. Students enrolled in the professional schools paying varying rates: law, $3,284; medicine, $5,352; dentistry, $3,717; and veterinary medicine, $4,324. Out-of-state students are charged tuition at approximately three times that charged state residents.

Mandatory fees, which support student union buildings, recreation, counseling, health services and insurance, are different at the two campuses. Chicago students are assessed $295 per quarter ($955 for a three-quarter academic year) for fees; students at Urbana-Champaign pay $358 per semester ($716 for a two-semester academic year).

An "average" University of Illinois at Chicago commuter undergraduate, who lives at home with his family, can expect total expenses to be about $8,109 for the academic year. Included are tuition, fees, books and supplies, daily travel and moderate personal expenses. A student living in campus housing can expect his costs to be $11,385 for the academic year.

An "average" undergraduate living on campus at Urbana-Champaign can expect total expenses to be $8,850 for the academic year.

Student Financial Aid
Financial aid totaling $212.5 million assisted students on both campuses in 1989-90. Nearly 44,450 awards were made to 44,300 students. "Gift" aid, including scholarships, grants, fellowships, and tuition and fee waivers, accounted for nearly 42 percent of the total. Employment and loans covered about 58 percent. Students on both campuses earned nearly $8 million from university-related jobs in 1989-90.

UNIVERSITY OF ILLINOIS AT CHICAGO PROFILE

The University of Illinois at Chicago (UIC) was formed by the 1982 consolidation of two campuses, the U. of I. at the Medical Center and the U. of I. at Chicago Circle. But UIC's roots date back to the 1890s, when the private Chicago College of Pharmacy and independent College of Physicians and Surgeons became part of the U. of I. By the 1940s, the U. of I. had added other elements, including nursing, dentistry and a major teaching hospital. In 1946, the U. of I. opened a two-year undergraduate division at Chicago's Historic Navy Pier, where more than 100,000 students attended classes. In 1965, an entire new campus, called Chicago Circle, opened. Today, UIC is a comprehensive research campus and the largest university in Chicago. The campus covers 170 acres a mile southwest of Downtown Chicago.
Total enrollment, Fall 1990: 25,320
Full-time staff, Fall 1990: Faculty, 2,038; graduate assistants, 906; administrative and professional, 1,401; nonacademic, 5,581. House staff (583) is excluded. Staff affiliated with the Division of Services for Crippled Children in Springfield and the College of Medicine at Urbana-Champaign, Peoria and Rockford are included.

UNIVERSITY OF ILLINOIS AT URBANA-CHAMPAIGN PROFILE

The University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign was founded in 1867 as a state-supported land grant institution with a threefold mission of teaching, research and public service. Located about 130 miles south of Chicago in the state's heartland, the campus ranks among the world's great universities, especially in research and graduate studies. Its faculty, academic programs, student body and facilities have earned outstanding reputations. The campus's library has the third largest collection among U.S. academic libraries, after Harvard and Yale. The campus, which covers more than 700 acres, is a major midwestern center for the arts and regularly hosts world-class music, theater and dance performances.

UNIVERSITY HIGHLIGHTS

University Libraries
...at Chicago
The library at Chicago holds more than 5.7 million items, including 17,080 periodicals. Special collections include the archives of the Chicago Board of Trade; papers of the Chicago Urban League and Chicago Humanists-Studies; personal collections of architect Ludwig Mies van der Rohe; and the personal libraries of... and papers of Jane Addams and Ellen Gates Starr, pioneer social workers. The Library of the Health Sciences is the Regional Medical Library for 2,700 medical libraries in 10 states from Ohio to the Dakotas.

...at Urbana-Champaign

The Library at Urbana-Champaign contains more than 13.5 million items, including 7.7 million bound volumes. Only Harvard and Yale have larger academic libraries. The main library and 30 departmental libraries are computer-accessible through IUNet, the state’s interlibrary loan system. Special collections include Milton, Shakespeare, H.G. Wells, Carl Sandburg, Froust and Lincoln. Other prominent holdings include Stalwich and East European materials, 16th Century English literature, 18th- and 17th-century British history and literature, and maps. The sixth addition to the library stacks features shelving that moves along tracks, allowing for greater economy of space.

Landmarks and Museums

...at Urbana-Champaign

Allerton House (1900), now a conference center, was built as a private manor at the turn of the century and given to the University in 1946 by Robert Allerton. Formal gardens and 1,500 acres of woodland complement the house, which is 26 miles southwest of campus.

Altgeld Hall (1897), which houses the University library and law school and now is home to the mathematics department, is the only Romanesque building on campus. It was designed by alumnus Nathan Ricker, the first graduate (1873) in the discipline of architecture in the U.S.

Assembly Hall (1963), designed by Vax Abramovitz, is two concrete bowls, each 400 feet across, planned to lip with no interior supports. Permanent in-the-round seating 16,153. More than 125 buildings are modeled after it worldwide.

Feoinger Auditorium (1907), which anchors the south end of the central Quadrangle, was totally renovated in 1986 through the generosity of alumnus Helen Feoinger.

Illini Union (1941), which anchors the north side of the central Quadrangle, contains restaurants, meetings rooms, student-organization offices, guest rooms, book store, lounges and more. Built with federal money, the Illini Union generates its own operating budget. Expanded in 1963.

Kranert Art Museum (1961) features extensive permanent collections that provide a visual review of art history, Egyptian sculpture, Greek vases, medieval stained glass, Renaissance paintings, English silver, contemporary American paintings, and other original objects.

Kranert Center for the Performing Arts (1969), contains four indoor and one outdoor theaters, rehearsal space and production shops to support over 300 performances annually. Donors were Herman and Elaina Kranert.

Memorial Stadium (1923), with 69,200 permanent seats, was built as a memorial to the Illinois fatalities of World War I. Harold “Red” Grange, the “Galloping Ghost,” scored six touchdowns against Michigan in the 1924 dedication game.

Museum of Natural History (1870) contains nearly one-half million specimens representing the biological sciences, geology, archaeology and anthropology.

World Heritage Museum (1911), a museum of cultural history, contains significant collections of artifacts, manuscripts and textiles from the Near East, Egypt, Greece, Italy, Northern Europe, Africa and Asia.

Sports

...at Chicago

The Flames compete at the National Collegiate Athletic Association Division I level and are affiliated with the Central Collegiate Hockey Association and the Association of Mid-Continents Universities. The intercollegiate program offers eight men’s and seven women’s varsity sports. The basketball and ice hockey teams play in the UIC Pavilion, which seats 10,000 for basketball and 8,800 for ice hockey. Thomas Russo is director of athletics in the College of Health, Physical Education and Recreation.

...at Urbana-Champaign

The Division of Intercollegiate Athletics (DIA) operates the campus intercollegiate sports program. UUIUC is a charter member of the Big Ten Conference. The Fighting Illini compete in Division I of the NCAA. The DIA supports 11 intercollegiate sports for men and women for women. Memorial Stadium seats 69,200 for football. Basketball is played in the Assembly Hall, seating capacity is 16,153. FY91 budget is $16.5 million; approximately $280,000 is in University tuition waivers. John Mackovic is director of athletics.

Voluntary Support to the University of Illinois

...in fiscal year 1990 was $167.2 million, up from $97.5 million the year before.

Nearly 81,800 separate gifts were made to the University of Illinois through the University Foundation in FY90; an additional 3,800 gifts went directly to the U. of I. During the five years ended in June 1990, the University and the University Foundation received more than $475 million in gift income, and gifts from alumni donors more than doubled. Between 1985 and 1990 the University and Foundation raised more than $1 billion.
