THE UNIVERSITY OF ILLINOIS

... in brief

Chartered in 1857 in response to the Federal Land Grant Act, the University of Illinois is one of the largest and best comprehensive research universities in the nation.

Its mission is to advance human knowledge through teaching, research and public service.

The University is at or near the top of all American universities in the number of engineering doctorates awarded each year, and total chemistry and chemical engineering degrees.

The U. of I. offers more graduate study in dentistry, medicine, nursing, pharmacy and public health than any other health education institution in the nation.

Nine alumni and seven faculty members have won Nobel Prizes.

Ten Urbana faculty have been awarded the National Medal of Science; more than 100 from both campuses are current members of the National Academy of Science, the American Academy of Arts and Sciences, and the National Academy of Engineering.

Since the mid-80s, the Chicago campus has received more fellowships from the National Endowment for the Humanities than any other university.

In direct service to the people of Illinois, the University’s Continuing Education and Public Service programs and the Cooperative Extension Service annually bring credit and non-credit educational programs and research-based information to thousands of Illinoisans.

ENTERING THE UNIVERSITY

Admissions Information

...for the Chicago campus is available from the Undergraduate Admissions Office M/C 018, Box 5220, Chicago 60680. Telephone 312-996-4350.

...for the Urbana-Champaign campus is available from the Office of Admissions and Records, 10 Henry Administration Building, 501 S. Wright St., Urbana 61801. Telephone 217-333-0320.

Undergraduate admission requirements, including rank in high school class and national test scores, vary from college to college and sometimes by curriculum within a college. Both campuses urge prospective freshmen to apply early in the fall of their final year in high school.

Graduate and professional school entrance requirements vary.

Academic-Year Costs

Tuition for the 1992-93 school year (two semesters) is $2,782 at UIC and $2,486 at UIUC for freshmen and sophomores and $2,250 at UIC and $2,746 at UIUC for juniors and seniors, if they are Illinois residents. Annual tuition for in-state graduate students is $3,018 at UIC and $3,126 at UIUC. Students enrolled in the professional schools pay varying rates: law, $4,166; medicine, $6,190; dentistry, $4,304; and veterinary medicine, $5,550. Out-of-state students are charged tuition at approximately three times that charged state residents.

Mandatory fees, which support student union buildings, recreation, counseling, health services and insurance, are different at the two campuses. Chicago students are assessed $460 per semester ($920 for a two-semester academic year) for fees; students at Urbana-Champaign pay $421 per semester ($842 for a two-semester academic year).

An "average" University of Illinois at Chicago commuter undergraduate, who lives at home with his family, can expect total expenses to be about $5,873 for the academic year. Included are tuition, fees, books and supplies, daily travel and moderate personal expenses. A student living in campus housing can expect his costs to be $12,493 for the academic year.

An "average" undergraduate living on campus at Urbana-Champaign can expect total expenses to be $9,978 for the academic year.

Student Financial Aid

Financial aid totaling $220.7 million assisted students on both campuses in 1989-90. Nearly 97,400 awards were made to 47,400 students. "Gift" aid, including scholarships, grants, fellowships, and tuition and fee waivers, accounted for nearly 40 percent of the total. Employment and loans covered about 60 percent. Students on both campuses earned nearly $80 million from university-related jobs in 1990-91.

UNIVERSITY OF ILLINOIS AT CHICAGO PROFILE

The University of Illinois at Chicago (UIC) was formed by the 1982 consolidation of two campuses, the U. of I. at the Medical Center and the U. of I. at Chicago Circle. But UIC's roots date back to the 1890s, when the private Chicago College of Pharmacy and independent College of Physicians and Surgeons became part of the U. of I. By the 1940s, the U. of I. had added other elements, including nursing, dentistry and a major teaching hospital. In 1946, the U. of I. opened a two-year undergraduate division at Chicago's historic Navy Pier, where more than 100,000 students attended classes. In 1965, an online new campus, called Chicago Circle, opened. Today, UIC is a comprehensive research campus and the largest university in Chicago. Its hospital annually admits over 16,000 patients; it also serves 300,000 outpatients and 40,000 emergency service patients per year. The College of Medicine consistently ranks first in the nation in the combined number of black and Hispanic physicians in its graduating class. The campus covers 170 acres a mile southwest of Downtown Chicago.

UNIVERSITY OF ILLINOIS AT URBANA-CHAMPAIGN PROFILE

The University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign was founded in 1867 as a state-supported, land-grant institution with a threefold mission of teaching, research and public service. Located about 130 miles south of Chicago in the state's heartland, the campus ranks among the world's great universities, especially in research and graduate studies. Its faculty, academic programs, student body and facilities have earned outstanding reputations. The campus's library has the third largest collection among U.S. academic libraries, after Harvard and Yale. The campus, which covers more than 700 acres, is a major midwestern center for the arts and regularly hosts world-class music, theater and dance performers.

Total enrollment, Fall 1992: 35,815

UNIVERSITY HIGHLIGHTS

University Libraries

... at Chicago
The Library at Chicago holds more than 5.7 million items, including 17,600 periodicals. Special collections include the archives of the Chicago Board of Trade, papers of the Chicago Urban League and Chicago Humane Society, personal collections of architect Ludwig Miles van der Rohe; and the personal libraries and papers of Jane Addams and Ellen Gates Starr, pioneer social workers. The Library of the Health Sciences is the Regional Medical Library for 2,700 medical libraries in 10 states from Ohio to the Dakotas.

... at Urbana-Champaign
The Library at Urbana-Champaign contains nearly 15 million items, including 6 million bound volumes. Only Harvard and Yale have larger academic libraries. The main library and 38 departmental libraries are computer-accessible through ILLINET, the state's interlibrary loan system. Special collections include Milton, Shakespeare, H.G. Wells, Carl Sandburg, Proust and Lincoln. Other prominent holdings include Slavic and East European materials; 18th Century English literature; 16th- and 17th-century British history and literature, and maps. The sixth addition to the library stacks features shelving that moves along tracks, allowing for greater economy of space.

Landmarks and Museums

... at Chicago
Jane Addams Hull-House (1886), the first settlement house in the nation, was restored by the University and designated a national landmark in 1967. Nobel Laureate Addams rented the Hull mansion in 1889 for her social work among immigrants.

The Pavilion (1982) is an entertainment, sports and convention center for events from basketball and soccer to concerts and convocations. The Pavilion, which seats 12,000, is the largest collegiate ice hockey facility in the nation.
University Hall (1965), a 28-story building that houses administrative and academic offices and seminar and conference rooms, expression the scarcity of urban space by the unusual way the upper stories expand above a stilled base.

James Woodworth Prairie Preserve (1943), a completely protected preserve, is one of the last natural tracts of prairie-peninsula grassland east of the Mississippi River. Bought by the U. of I. in 1968; located north of the city, between Niles and Glenview.

... at Urbana-Champaign

Allerton House (1900), now a conference center, was built as a private manor at the turn of the century and given to the University in 1946 by Robert Allerton. Formal gardens and 1,500 acres of woodland complement the house, which is 26 miles southwest of campus.

Altgeld Hall (1897), which has housed the University library and law school and now is home to the mathematics department, is the only Romanesque building on campus. It was designed by alumnus Nathan Richer, the first graduate (1873) in the discipline of architecture in the U.S.

Assembly Hall (1963), designed by Max Abramovitz, is two concrete bowls, each 400 feet across, placed lip to lip with no interior supports. Permanent in-the-round seating: 16,153. More than 125 buildings are modeled after it worldwide.

Arnold O. and Mabel M. Beckman Institute for Advanced Science and Technology, completed in late 1988, is a $50-million interdisciplinary center for human and artificial intelligence studies.

Foellinger Auditorium (1907), which anchors the south end of the central Quadrangle, was totally renovated in 1985 through the generosity of alumna Helene Foellinger.

Illini Union (1941), which anchors the north side of the central Quadrangle, contains restaurants, meetings rooms, student-organization offices, guest rooms, book store, lounges and more. Built with federal money, the Illini Union generates its own operating budget. Expanded in 1963.

Krannert Art Museum (1961) features extensive permanent collections that provide a visual review of art history, Egyptian sculpture, Greek vases, medieval stained glass, Renaissance paintings, English silver, contemporary American paintings, and other original objects.

Krannert Center for the Performing Arts (1969), contains four indoor and one outdoor theaters, rehearsal spaces and production shops to support 300 performances annually. Donors were Herman and Elinore Krannert.

Memorial Stadium (1923), with 69,000 permanent seats, was built as a memorial to the Illinois fatalities of World War I. Harold "Red" Grange, the "Galloping Ghost," scored six touchdowns against Michigan in the 1924 dedication game.

Museum of Natural History (1870) contains nearly one-half million specimens representing the biological sciences, geology, archaeology and anthropology.

World Heritage Museum (1911), a museum of cultural history, contains significant collections of artifacts, manuscripts and textiles from the Near East, Egypt, Greece, Italy, Northern Europe, Africa and Asia.

Sports

... at Chicago

The Flames compete at the National Collegiate Athletic Association Division I level and are affiliated with the Central Collegiate Hockey Association and the Mid-Continent Conference. The intercollegiate program offers eight men's and seven women's varsity sports. The basketball and ice hockey teams play in the IUC Pavilion, which seats 10,000 for basketball and 8,800 for ice hockey. Thomas Russo is director of athletics in the College of Kinesiology.

... at Urbana-Champaign

The Division of Intercollegiate Athletics (DIA) operates the campus' intercollegiate sports program. UIUC is a charter member of the Big Ten Conference. The Fighting Illini compete in Division I of the NCAA. The DIA supports 11 intercollegiate sports for men and eight for women. Memorial Stadium seats 69,200 for football. Basketball is played in the Assembly Hall; seating capacity is 16,153. FY33 budget is $18.5 million; approximately $312,000 is in University tuition waivers. Ronald E. Guenther is director of athletics.

Voluntary Support to the University of Illinois

... in fiscal year 1992 was $113.6 million, up from $109.7 million the year before.

Nearly 85,700 separate gifts were made to the University of Illinois through the University Foundation in FY92; an additional 4,300 gifts went directly to the U. of I. During the five years ended in June 1992, the University and the University Foundation received more than $516.7 million in gift income.
