The University of Illinois

One of the premier public institutions of higher education in the nation and the world, the University of Illinois was chartered in 1867 in response to the Federal Land Grant Act.

As one university with three campuses—Chicago, Springfield and Urbana-Champaign—the University of Illinois strives to advance knowledge and improve the quality of life through teaching, research and public service.

Each campus makes a unique contribution to the overall excellence of the University. For example:

- UI-Chicago, the largest university in the Chicago area and one of the 88 leading research universities in the nation, is one of only four universities with a full complement of six health sciences colleges.
- As the newest and smallest campus of the university and located in the state capital, UI-Springfield offers its students unique opportunities for study and internships in public affairs, business, health and liberal arts and sciences.
- UI-Urbana-Champaign has graduated 10 Nobel laureates and 16 Pulitzer Prize winners; the campus regularly shows up on lists of top-ranked universities, including those from U.S. News & World Report (#10 among national public universities) and Kiplinger Online’s “State Universities to Cheer About” (#4).

Full-time equivalent employees: faculty, 5,166; administrative and professional, 5,192; support staff, 11,433 (Fall 1998)

Graduate assistants: 7,982 (Fall 1998)

Degrees awarded: 15,723 (1997-98)

Living alumni: 573,228 (1998 estimate); Alumni Association membership 112,785

Operating budget: $2.2 billion (1998-99)

Separately funded research: $414.4 million (1998-99)

Student organizations: more than 1,050 (Fall 1998)

Physical plant: The University consists of more than 800 buildings with a building replacement cost of $4.6 billion. The three campuses encompass 2,425 acres, with additional holdings totaling 9,207 acres (including an airport, agriculture experiment fields, Allerton Park, research sites, timber reserves and natural areas).

Academic-Year Costs

In-state base tuition for the 1998-99 school year (two semesters) is $3,046 at UIC, $2,708 at UIS, and $3,408 at UIUC. Annual base tuition for in-state graduate students is $3,640 at UIC, $2,370 at UIS, and $3,684 at UIUC. Students enrolled in the professional schools pay varying rates: dentistry, $9,124; law, $7,234; medicine, $13,936 (first-year students; all others pay $11,936); pharmacy, $8,572 (first-year students; all others pay $4,022); and veterinary medicine, $7,962. Out-of-state students are charged tuition at approximately three times that charged Illinois residents. Mandatory fees (excluding refundable fees), which support student union buildings, recreation, counseling, health services and insurance, differ at the three campuses. For a two-semester academic year, UIC students are assessed fees of $1,452 (medical students pay an additional disability insurance fee); UIS students are assessed $442; and UIUC undergraduate students are assessed $1,146, graduate students $1,222.

On-campus housing costs also vary from campus to campus. For 1998-99, undergraduate room and board at UIC averages $5,690; at UIS, $2,016; and at UIUC, $4,962. Rates are dependent upon the number of people per room and meal plan options; the standard is double occupancy with a 14-meal per week plan. UIS offers no meal plan; the figure shown reflects apartment-style living in four-bedroom units.

More than 100 faculty on all three campuses are current members of the National Academy of Sciences, the American Academy of Arts and Sciences and the National Academy of Engineering. University of Illinois researchers are responsible for the pioneering Web browser Mosaic; for breakthrough results about the potential cancer-fighting substances in grapes and wine; for major contributions to scholarship about William Faulkner; and for groundbreaking uses of virtual reality.

All three campuses engage in far-reaching public service initiatives that benefit the State of Illinois and its citizens.

University Profile

Campus locations: Chicago, Springfield and Urbana-Champaign, with additional branches of the Chicago-based College of Medicine at Peoria, Rockford and Urbana

Total on-campus enrollment: 65,029 (Fall 1998)
Student Financial Aid

Financial aid totaling $457 million assisted U of I students in 1997-98. Approximately 132,585 awards were made to 49,292 students in Chicago, Springfield and Urbana-Champaign. "Gift" aid, including scholarships, grants, fellowships, and tuition and fee waivers, accounted for 42 percent of the total. Employment and loans covered 58 percent. Students earned more than $100 million from university-related jobs in 1997-98.

University of Illinois at Chicago

Located within walking distance of the Loop in the heart of Chicago, the University of Illinois at Chicago (UIC) is a vital part of the educational, technological and cultural fabric of the Chicago metropolitan area. UIC was formed in 1982 by the consolidation of two U of I campuses: the Medical Center campus, which dates back to the 19th century, and the comprehensive Chicago Circle campus which replaced, in 1965, the two-year undergraduate Navy Pier campus that had opened in 1946 to educate returning veterans.

In recent years, UIC has stepped up its efforts to improve the quality of life in Chicago and other metropolitan areas through its Great Cities program, which directs teaching, research and public service toward elementary and secondary education, health care, economic development and violence control.

UIC also is a leader in health care. The UIC Medical Center provides top-quality health care to 400,000 patients a year. One in every six Illinois physicians is a UIC graduate.

University of Illinois at Springfield

The University of Illinois at Springfield (UIS), a comprehensive institution offering a variety of bachelor’s and master’s degrees and a Doctor of Public Administration, is located on 667 acres a few miles south of the capital city near Lake Springfield. A relatively small student population allows UIS to offer a personalized, high-quality education. Course work begins at the second-semester sophomore level and continues through the junior, senior and graduate levels. While programs are designed with older, part-time commuter students in mind, UIS is experiencing a steady increase in the number of full-time undergraduates.

Founded in 1969 as Sangamon State University, UIS became the newest and smallest campus of the University of Illinois on July 1, 1995. Emphasis is placed on public affairs instruction, research and service carried out through community partnerships. Students have first-hand access to state government and public service through special courses, projects and internships.

University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign

The University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign (UIUC) is among the nation's most distinguished teaching and research institutions. The largest public university in Illinois, UIUC's diverse programs reflect the mission of a comprehensive land-grant university. Students and scholars find the university an ideal place to conduct cross-disciplinary research. The most visible example of the university's commitment to such research is the Beckman Institute for Advanced Science and Technology. The campus, a world leader in computing design and applications, is home to the National Center for Supercomputing Applications. The University Library is the third largest academic library in the country.

Revenue by Source

Campaign Illinois
The University of Illinois was one of the first public universities to undertake a capital campaign with a goal of raising $1 billion in private donations. The University not only met but surpassed its goal months ahead of schedule. A year-end report from the University of Illinois Foundation shows Campaign Illinois gifts and pledges totaling $1,128,431,414 as of December 31, 1998. The graph below depicts how that money will be used.
Voluntary Support to the University of Illinois

Fiscal year 1998: $130.1 million

Nearly 96,164 separate gifts were made to the University of Illinois through the University Foundation in FY98; an additional 3,646 gifts went directly to the U of I. During the five years ended in June 1998, the University and the University Foundation received more than $612 million in gift income.
