The University of Illinois

provides an environment in which research and technological advances flourish, providing students with research opportunities and delivering valuable results to the marketplace. The arts and humanities, however, remain the University's foundation. They prepare students for the challenges of reconciling life in the "information age" with critical skills of analytical thinking, problem-solving and effective communication.

Technology and the humanities merge in many ways at the University. Fine arts students in Chicago use virtual environments to create sculptures and other works of art. Liberal Arts and Sciences students at the Springfield campus can enroll in a two-year bachelor degree completion program through the Internet—quite possibly never stepping foot in a classroom or meeting their classmates. At Urbana, music is produced on an electronic instrument that plugs directly into a synthesizer or a USB-capable computer.

These amazing and useful advances did not invent themselves. Educated, critical thinkers imagined, created and developed them all in the rich environment of one of this country's best universities. The University is a great leader in training students to meet the test of today's rapidly changing world, and to welcome future challenges.

University Profile

Campus locations: Chicago, Springfield and Urbana-Champaign, with additional branches of the Chicago-based College of Medicine at Peoria, Rockford and Urbana

Total on-campus enrollment: 64,973 (Fall 2000)

Full-time equivalent employees: faculty, 5,352; administrative and professional, 6,232; support staff, 11,139 (Fall 2000)

Graduate assistants: 8,484 (Fall 2000)

Degrees awarded: 15,786 (1999-2000)

Living alumni: 496,857; Alumni Association membership 106,109

Operating budget: $2.5 billion (2000-01)

Separately funded research: $519.4 million (2000-01)

Student organizations: more than 992 (Fall 2000)

Physical plant: The University consists of more than 800 buildings with a building replacement cost of $5.0 billion. The three campuses encompass 2,427 acres, with additional holdings totaling 9,363 acres (including an airport, agriculture experiment fields, Allerton Park, research sites, timber reserves and natural areas).

Academic-Year Costs

In-state base tuition for the 2000-01 school year (two semesters) is $3,232 at UIC, $2,873 at UIS, and $3,724 at UIUC. Annual base tuition for in-state graduate students is $3,866 at UIC, $2,586 at UIS, and $4,242 at UIUC. Students enrolled in the professional schools pay varying rates: dentistry, $10,902; law, $8,926; medicine, $16,664 (students who entered Fall 1998 or after; all others pay $12,664); pharmacy, $7,768 (students who entered Fall 1998 or after; all others pay $4,268); and veterinary medicine, $8,696. Out-of-state students are charged tuition at approximately three times that charged Illinois residents.

Mandatory fees (excluding refundable fees), which support student union buildings, recreation, counseling, health services and insurance, differ at the three campuses. For a two-semester academic year, UIC students are assessed fees of $1,568 (medical students pay an additional disability insurance fee); UIS students are assessed $522; and UIUC undergraduate students are assessed $1,270, graduate students $1,372.

On-campus housing costs also vary from campus to campus. For 2000-01, undergraduate room and board at UIC averages $6,056; at UIS, $2,448; and at UIUC, $5,424. Rates are dependent upon the number of people per room and meal plan options; the standard is double occupancy with a 14-meal per week plan. UIS offers no meal plan; the figure shown reflects apartment-style living in four-bedroom units.

Student Financial Aid

Financial aid of nearly $486 million assisted UI students in 1998-99. Approximately 124,180 awards were made to 42,128 students in Chicago, Springfield and Urbana-Champaign. "Gift" aid, including scholarships, grants, fellowships, and tuition and fee waivers, accounted for 42 percent of the total. Employment and loans covered 58 percent. Students earned more than $118 million from university-related jobs in 1998-99.
University of Illinois at Chicago

Located within walking distance of the Loop in the heart of Chicago, the University of Illinois at Chicago (UIC) is an international leader in health-related research. The UIC Medical Center provides top-quality care to more than 480,000 patients a year. One in every six Illinois physicians is a UIC graduate.

Increased use of herbal medicine and natural supplements has created an urgent need for authoritative research on the effectiveness and safety of medicinal plants. The College of Pharmacy at Chicago houses the largest pharmacy group in the U.S., and has attracted millions of dollars in funding and a variety of interesting projects. The National Institutes of Health gave UIC $7.9 million to create the Center for Dietary Supplements Research on Botanicals. The Fogarty International Center gave UIC $2.4 million for a new approach to drug discovery that protects both the environment and the economy of developing countries.

University of Illinois at Springfield

Previously known as Sangamon State University, UIS joined the University of Illinois in 1995. The smallest of the U of I's three campuses, UIS is located on 667 acres on the southeast side of the state capital. Excellent teaching, professional development and practical experience are hallmarks of the institution, which celebrated its 30th anniversary in 2000.

Students at Springfield now have a broader world to explore. UIS established its first formal study abroad programs with the Akiyama Institute of Technology in Japan, Southampton Institute in England and Trinity College in Dublin, Ireland, one of the oldest universities in western Europe. UIS is leading a collaborative project with three other universities that will focus on teaching computer ethics through workshops and Web-based instruction. The National Science Foundation UIS boasts one general access computer lab and six computer labs/classrooms. Smart classrooms, equipped with computers, VCRs, sound systems, projectors and connections to the campus network and Internet are located throughout campus.

University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign

The largest and most prestigious public university in the state, the University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign is home to some of the nation's top-ranked programs in agriculture, business, communications, engineering, liberal arts, library science and more. The 2000 Fiske Guide to Colleges awarded the Urbana-Champaign campus five stars in academics—its highest rating, and U.S. News & World Report ranked it among the top ten public universities in the nation for 2001.

The University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign boasts the third largest academic library among all universities in the United States. It is home to more than 80 research centers, laboratories and institutes.

Microbiologist Carl R. Woese is one of 12 National Medal of Science winners, honored for his discovery of archaea, a third form of life. Campaign Illinois

The University of Illinois was one of the first public universities to undertake a capital campaign with a goal of raising $1 billion in private donations. The University not only met but surpassed its goal months ahead of schedule. A year-end report from the University of Illinois Foundation shows Campaign Illinois gifts and pledges totaling $1,431,902,300 as of June 30, 2000. The chart below depicts how that money will be used.
Voluntary Support to the University of Illinois

Fiscal year 2000: $160.4 million

Nearly 120,800 separate gifts were made to the University of Illinois through the University Foundation in FY99; an additional 3,509 gifts went directly to the U of I. During the five years ended in June 2000, the University and the University Foundation received more than $677.1 million in gift income.
